PREFACE

Included in the program of the Historical Records Survey is an inventory of the official records of churches and religious organizations and the publication of guides to such material, with some historical data regarding the institutions inventoried. In the prosecution of this task, a list of churches and affiliated organizations has formed and taken shape. It is recognized that the information thus accumulated is valuable to many persons within and without the churches. To make this information available, in advance of any publications giving historical data on the churches and listing their records, this compilation is presented.

Difficulty was experienced in deciding whether certain institutions and organizations should be included. There is no absolute criterion to establish a dividing line, but in general, organizations are included if their object is primarily to carry on religious work, and institutions are included if they are organized for religious or charitable purposes and are owned and managed by churches. Thus there are included parochial schools, schools of higher education, independent graded schools operated by religious bodies, and hospitals, also homes for the aged, orphanages, and rest homes, which are supported, operated, owned by or associated directly with churches or other religious bodies.

Many religious movements and activities naturally had to be excluded. Among these are unorganized missions, missions of established churches, preaching stations, Sunday schools, ladies' aids, ministerial associations, deaneries, charitable organizations, and civic organizations with religious titles and names. Camps used by religious bodies for summer religious activities are also excluded. Almost invariably the organizations and institutions excluded have been omitted with the consent of the religious body concerned.

Denominations are given in the directory in alphabetical order, with miscellaneous and independent organizations listed under Independent. Some religious bodies so closely resemble one another, that a general grouping has been made. Thus under "Adventist," churches of that type will be found; under "Lutheran," all Lutheran churches; under "Methodists," all Methodist bodies, etc. Each denomination is subdivided into smaller units to such an extent as seems practical, and the individual churches are listed under the smallest unit employed. The general arrangement follows as far as possible that employed by the United States Bureau of the Census in its Census of Religious Bodies, 1936.

Each church is listed alphabetically by post office address under its respective district, circuit, or other subdivision. In other words, for the eleven circuits of the Northern Minnesota District of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, there will be eleven separate alphabetical lists, each list representing a circuit under which the churches will be found in alphabetical order by name of the post office. The only exception to this alphabetical rule is that employed for the Protestant Episcopal Church and for the Roman Catholic Church, where the cathedral or the pro-cathedral, as the case may be, comes first at the head of the list of churches of each diocese. Thus the Pro-Cathedral at Winona will precede the listing of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Adams, at the head of the churches of the Diocese of Winona.

Associated churches, not enjoying full membership, follow the church body to which they adhere. Churches not affiliated with any religious body nor resembling in doctrine any other religious movement are classified under "Independent Churches." Unassociated, non-denominational, community, and independent churches will be found under this heading.

Churches not affiliated with any religious body, but resembling in doctrine some definite religious group, will be listed under the groups they resemble as "Independent Churches." Thus, there will appear, "Independent Lutheran Churches," "Independent Baptist Churches."

Federated churches will appear under that heading. These are churches which because of economical or geographical reasons are the result of a merger or federation of two or more organized churches, one of one religious body and one of another.

Entries for these will be found in three places. One, in full, under Federated Churches. One will appear under each of the two bodies whose churches have made the federation, but such secondary entries will give no directory details but will refer the reader to "Federated Churches."

The Oak Hills Fellowship, Inc., the Northern Gospel Mission, and the American Sunday School Union have been given different treatment. The field enterprises of these three organizations are missionary in type, and the nature of their organizations prevents their classifications as other religious bodies. Their operation is similar to that of non-religious organizations and institutions; their support is from various and sometimes many denominations; and the large turnover in their work tends to lend a less permanent aspect to the organization. When the results of their efforts become permanent, it frequently happens that a church organized under their leadership joins one or another of the religious bodies listed elsewhere. We have herein listed their work by fields, giving, as we found them available, the name and address of the pastor of each field, (usually called a "Missionary"), and the area each pastor covers, by counties.

The institutions and organizations are listed in the same order as churches, except that under the above heading, they follow the listing of churches for each religious body. Institutions and organizations have been listed with the consent or approval of the religious body with which they apparently affiliate. The order of the entry is the same as that for the church, except that the name of the superintendent or director of the organization or institution is given instead of a clergyman.

Parish or parochial schools are listed along with and after the entry of the church to which they belong and of which they are an integral part. Universities, four year colleges, junior colleges, academies, seminaries, and grade schools operated by the religious body, or one of its orders or societies independent of a parish or church, are included under this heading at the end of the list of churches. For all such schools, the name of the principal, the superintendent, the director, or whoever may be in charge of its educational activities is given.

The order used for each religious body is as follows: (1) Churches and parochial schools, (2) other schools, (3) organizations and institutions.

Each entry begins with the official name of the church, which name was furnished as such by the officers of the church, by the pastor, or was taken from church literature. Official names were checked and approved by the headquarters of the religious body to which the church belongs.

The entries are introduced by the post office addresses. Under this address, village or city name, the entries are filed alphabetically. If there are no street names or numbers, the name of the post office alone is given. When the church is located rurally, the rural route on which the church building or meeting place is located is given. When the church has a rural location, an effort has been made to give the approximate mileage or distance the church building or meeting place is from the nearest village, provided that village is in a direct line of satisfactory roads and highways. Examples: "3½ mi. S. of Kennedy;" "3½ mi. S. of Kennedy, in hamlet of Milltown;" "R.F.D. 2, Kingston, in hamlet of Kennedy."

When a church building has a telephone, it is listed after the location.

In the case of Roman Catholic Churches, when the church entry is that of an organized mission church, the name of the parish church is given in parenthesis.

A parenthesis contains information regarding incorporation and also regarding any popular name. The order is popular name, corporate name, and citation to corporation records. Popular and corporate names are not given unless they differ considerably from the official name. If a corporate name is given, it is enclosed in quotation marks and is used in the form in which it appears in the last recording. The corporate citation gives the following information: name of county where filed, title of record books wherein filed, labeling, page number, and year of filing. No mention is made of lack of incorporation, if the church is not incorporated.

The name of the county in which the church is located is always given. If the corporate citation has been filed in a different county than the one in which a church is located, the names of both counties are given, one with the citation, the other with the location. The name of the county follows the location, except when the name of the county in which the citation is filed is the same as the one where the church is located. In that case, only the name of the county in which the citation is filed is given, and it is taken for granted that the location of the church is within the boundaries of the county named. Sometimes the post office address will be in a different county than the one given, when it must be understood that the location of the church is within the boundaries of the county named.

The next item is the name of the clergyman. His full name is given whenever available, but otherwise only surname and initials are given. We have used the word indicating the clergyman's position only with the approval of the religious bodies concerned. Thus, the Presbyterians will be called Ministers; the Catholics, Pastors; the Episcopals, Rectors; etc. As the salutation for a pastor or any ordained clergyman is "Reverend," this word has been omitted. It would have been appropriate to give the degrees and titles of clergymen, but as this was impossible without a re-survey, and as the few titles and degrees we could have given would favor some and not others, it was thought best to omit them for clergymen of all denominations.

The address of the clergyman follows his name. The full address is given for the residence entry. For other churches he serves, only the city or village in which he lives is given. Sometimes pastors maintain a post office address at each, or sometimes only some, of their other charges. In such cases, the address is given for the residence church and is also given in full for each charge, provided he has maintained a post office box or other means of receiving mail at each charge. Thus, the same clergyman may have two or more post office addresses. When the address of the church is the same as that of the clergyman, only the address for the church is given. Following the address of the clergyman, comes his telephone number. In the few instances where church and parsonage telephone numbers are identical, only one telephone number is given.

Following the telephone number, a paragraph names the parish or parochial school. These are educational schools, of high school or grade school level. Schools for religious instruction only, or one-hour classes for religion held in public schools, or schools of a parish character maintained merely for instruction of music and religion, are omitted. The name of the school usually resembles the name of the church. However, this is not always true. The address of the school is given if there is a street name and number, or if the school has a different rural location than the church building, which infrequently happens. When the address of the school and the church are the same, none is given for the school.

For Catholic and most Protestant parish schools, the pastor is customarily the superintendent. Since the name of the pastor has already been given, the name of the teacher, principal, or superintendent in charge of the school is supplied. Telephone numbers are given whenever available.

Two indexes list the names of persons and the names of organizations. A list of publications of the Historical Records Survey to date concludes the volume.

Acknowledgments are due the many project workers who have gathered information; the clergymen and other church officials throughout the State, who so generously have furnished the data and taken time to answer questions; the publishers, who have contributed directories and lists; the several editors, who have assisted with the compilation; the Minnesota Historical Society and the Minnesota Department of Administration, sponsors of the project; and the officers of the Work Projects Administration, who have made the survey possible and who have given generously whatever assistance has been asked.

Copies of this publication are distributed gratis to the public libraries in the State and to a number of institutions outside the State. A number has been supplied the Library of Congress and the Washington office of the survey. A few are available to heads of institutions. Requests for copies may be addressed to Dr. Arthur J. Larsen, Superintendent, Minnesota Historical Society, St. Paul. Except for tax supported institutions, transportation costs will be assumed by the recipient.
